God's Strong Daughters

Women and Ministry in Catholicism

Katholische Akademie
Bistum Dresden-Meißen

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE

The question of the role of women has become central to the very future of the Roman Catholic Church. The answers the Church has given so far have contributed to a widespread loss of credibility since one cannot defend human dignity and at the same time deny equal rights to women. The responses to the synod on synodality clearly demonstrate that Catholics from all over the world expect and demand gender justice from their church.

Which functions and offices in the church will be filled by women in the future? Which structures that limit what can be said, thought and practiced need to be overcome? Which challenges are ahead?
